Self Assessment

At the end of the semester, I’d like you to reflect back on your position as a writer and as a learner in this course. In a minimum of 700 words, please discuss in detail one thing you learned about writing (this is intentionally vague because you can do a variety of things about this subject) in this class. You will want to provide examples of how you learned it and explore why it matters to your process. You may choose to discuss a “tendency” and how you worked it out and will continue to do so, or you may choose to discuss an “aha moment” and how you will sustain it into the future. I want you to talk about past understanding, learning, and also future writing moments. I believe this kind of assignment will help you all in the future. You might find it illuminating to review your writing responses. What goals did you set for yourself in this class? Did you reach them?

Please give yourself a grade for the class and submit this assignment to Google Drive by midnight on Wednesday, December 17th.
